Competition Format

■ Tournament System

All divisions will follow the Chinese rules of counting and the Swiss system. The rules and schedule are as follows:

All matches will be played on a 13x13 board, with Black winning by 88 points. Each round will last 40 minutes. If a game exceeds the time limit, the referee has the authority to pause the game and decide the outcome.

The colour of the stones (black or white) shall be determined by the system. The Captain and the player on Board 3 shall play with the colour assigned by the system, while the player on Board 2 shall play with the opposite colour.

The game is considered as officially ended when both parties have passed their move subsequently or agreed that the game has ended. Once the game has officially ended, neither players can request or be allowed to play more moves even if either player sees unfinished areas on the board afterwards. Players should immediately call for a referee to determine the result of the game via Fox Go Server's automated territory counting function. Referees also have the right to determine the results based on their own judgement.

Competition Format

■ Swiss System

All teams must complete the designated number of rounds. The number of rounds is determined based on the number of participating teams. If a group produces a single undefeated team, the group's tournament will immediately end and proceed to the award ceremony. Estimated number of rounds based on number of teams:

NUMBER OF TEAMS	NUMBER OF ROUNDS
2-4	2
5-8	3
9-16	4
17-32	5
33-64	6
65-128	7

■ Scoring and Results

Each team match consists of three games: Captain, Board 2, and Board 3. Each individual win awards 2 points, and a loss gives 0 points. The team with the higher total game points wins the round and earns 2 match points; the losing team gets 0 match points. In the case of unresolved results such as triple ko (three-cycle repetition), the game is considered a draw, and both players receive 1 point. Final rankings will be determined based on Swiss system standings. In scenarios where teams have the same SOS and SSOS, the performance of the captains of the team will serve as a tie-breaker to determine the final ranking of the teams.
